

MANY REFORMS NOW IN SIGHT

PROGRAM FOR NEXT TWELVE MONTHS IN CONGRESS IS OUTLINED.

PLAN IS AMBITIOUS

COVER ANTI-TRUST, RAILROAD AND CURRENCY LEGISLATION.

TARIFF ABOUT ROUNDED OFF

Bill Will Be in Hands of a Conference Committee by the End of the Week.

Washington, Sept. 7.—The program of anti-trust, railroad and currency legislation that faces congress for the ensuing twelve months has become fairly well outlined during the last week. President Wilson and the democratic leaders in the two houses of congress apparently have agreed upon an ambitious plan of legislative work which will bring all of the most important reforms contemplated by the Wilson administration within the period that ensues between now and the end of the next regular session of congress.

The tariff bill will be in the hands of a conference committee of the house and senate before the end of this week. Currency legislation already has been passed by the house and is now in the hands of the senate. The prospects for immediate currency legislation in the senate have not improved during the last week, but supporters of the administration bill hold to the hope that by the time the senate has passed the house bill, the senate committee on banking and currency will be ready to act upon it.

Anti-Trust Legislation.

President Wilson's ideas of anti-trust legislation have become well known since his effective work in New Jersey during the closing days of his administration as governor of that state. He has given a general outline of what he desires in the way of trust legislation, and it is believed that the first subjects taken up at the regular session of congress next December. Twice within the last week Senator Simmons, in charge of the tariff bill in the senate, had headed off attempts to put trust or railroad rate amendment in the bill by the announcement that these subjects will receive prompt and active consideration when the winter session begins.

Senator Cummins failed in his attempt to have the tariff bill changed so that railroads would be forbidden to lower rates to importers. This will be pressed at the next session as a part of the railroad rate law program. Senator Simmons announced yesterday he believed important changes would be made in the railroad laws in the next congress.

The currency hearings before the senate committee on currency and banking have developed radical expressions of opinions from members of the committee which indicate that long debates and discussions within the committee will be necessary if the general agreement can be reached on the administration bill. That measure is to come formally before the house tomorrow and it is believed that it will be passed practically without change in that body.

Little Antagonism.
While little marked antagonism has developed at the senate hearings among the democratic committee members toward vital features of the administration bill, there have been many individual expressions of committee members as to the economic strength features. Senators Hitchcock, O'Gorman, Shafroth and Reed, democrats, were particularly active in their questions.

WASHINGTON IS STILL WAITING

NO DEVELOPMENTS IN MEXICAN SITUATION—IT IS HUERTA'S NEXT MOVE.

TREVINO SUCCEEDS BLANQUET

Is Believed That Provisional President Doubts Loyalty of His Leading Generals.

Washington, Sept. 7.—While no announcements were made at any of the government departments today of any change in the diplomatic side of the Mexican controversy, two phases of the situation attracted much attention in official circles. One was the published disclaimer on the part of Nelson O'Shaughnessy, American charge d'affaires in Mexico City, that any positive assurances had been given him of the intention of Victoriano Huerta not to be a presidential candidate in the approaching elections. The other was the receipt of private telegrams from sources close to the administration in Mexico City stating that Gen. Geronimo Trevino soon would be made minister of war to succeed General Blanquet. It had been supposed here by many persons that Trevino was ordered back to Mexico City by Huerta to receive the reins of government as provisional president, while Huerta entered the presidential campaign.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy's statement was not surprising here, as it had been pointed out from time to time by officials at Washington that they had relied only on repeated emphasis by Federico Gamboa, Mexican minister of foreign affairs, of the statement that Huerta was ineligible by the constitution to succeed himself.

Mr. O'Shaughnessy incidentally disclosed the fact that the Mexican officials had supplemented the argument of the second Gamboa note calling attention to Huerta's ineligibility by verbal reference to that part of the note. This encourages the Washington officials to believe that the Huerta candidacy will not materialize. They realize that Huerta could circumvent constitutional obstacles by resigning in advance of the election, but such an act, it has been openly stated by high administration officials, would be regarded as a breach of faith and they are proceeding on the assumption that Huerta has been eliminated. The story that Trevino would be appointed to the cabinet and General Blanquet, the present minister of war, sent to the front, is in line with various reports that have reached here of the alleged infidelity of some of Huerta's military chiefs.

When Huerta recently issued an order redistributing his generals to various frontier points in Mexico, the move was interpreted as being of military character only, but more recently Washington officials have been led to believe that Huerta fears the investigation of plots and intrigues among his generals and is moving them about to prevent any concerted action against him. General Blanquet was the right hand man of Huerta in the days just preceding the overthrow of Madero.

The war department received a report of the killing of Lieutenant Acosta, a Mexican federal officer, in American immigration agents at El Paso. The report confirmed press dispatches of the incident, stating that Acosta was killed after he had crossed to American territory and fired on the Americans. The affair is in the hands of civil authorities at El Paso, although the immigration department here will make careful inquiry into the occurrence.

Least Injured of Three Sleeping Cars in Wreck

Two sleeping cars of the Bar Harbor Express, which was struck by the heavy locomotive of the White Mountain Express at Wallingford, Conn., were smashed to bits. The third, tipped over, with those sleeping inside.

Seventy-four persons have been killed and 411 injured in New Haven railroad wrecks in a little more than two years.

Tuesday's wreck, the fourteenth of the series, was the worst. Its most serious predecessor in recent years was the disaster at Bridgeport on July 12, 1911, when the Federal express jumped a cross-over at a high speed and twelve persons were killed and one hundred hurt. The only previous wreck for which fog was blamed was a rear-end collision at Waterbury on Washington's birthday, this year, in which the number of injured was twenty-one.

In the Stamford wreck of June 12 last, memorable for the harsh criticism of the railroad management made by Interstate Commerce Commissioners Prouty and McChord and for the unprecedented attempt to fix the blame by running a "ghost train" over the same stretch of track to see what it would do under normal and abnormal conditions, the dead numbered six and the injured twenty-two. The same day the Portland express was crashed in West Bridgeport on July 12, 1911, was the New Haven's crack flier between Washington and Boston. Speeding to make up lost time, it left the rails at a cross-over switch. Five cars lunged down a twenty-foot bank into Fairfield avenue. The engine and firemen were among those killed. One of the passengers who lost her life was Mrs. Helena D. Wolcott, the wife of the secretary of the Smithsonian Institution.

The next big New Haven catastrophe in Connecticut was another cross-over derailment on October 3, 1912, the train this time being the Springfield express. The train left the rails a little west of the station at Westport, Conn. The parlor cars took fire and most of the victims were burned to death. Among the dead were Mrs. Flora Gavit, a daughter of the late Anthony N. Brady; Mrs. James Cox Brady, his daughter-in-law and a daughter of the late Judge Andrew Hamilton; Mrs. C. B. Ransom, another daughter of Judge Hamilton, and Miss Mary Hamilton, her sister. Nine persons were killed and fifty hurt in this wreck.

On November 16, 1912, a month and a half after the Westport wreck, occurred what is known as the Green's Farms wreck. The Merchants Limited hit a split rail and went flying. Repeatedly the Westport horror was prevented because all the cars were made of steel. Thirty-three persons were injured, but none was killed. On the same day the Portland express was derailed near Milford, Conn. No one was seriously hurt.

The Stamford wreck on June 12 of this year was a rear-end collision. The second section of the Boston express came tearing around a curve, ran past the distance signal and buried its engine in the rear car, the wooden parlor car, Skylark. Six persons were killed, twenty-two injured.

Engineer Charles L. Doherty of the second section, contends that his air brakes hadn't worked properly, but the Interstate Commerce Commission decided that he had not used them properly. The commission laid most of the blame on the railroad, however, condemning it bitterly for allowing so young and inexperienced an engineer to run a fast passenger train. The report also recommended sweeping changes in the road's financial and operating policy.

Recent New Haven wrecks, while occurring with astonishing frequency, do not compare in point of fatalities with one which took place at the Norwalk River on May 6, 1853. A train went through a drawbridge and fifty persons were killed. It was the first big railroad disaster in the United States.

On March 2, 1907, a train carrying Governor Woodruff of Connecticut, members of his staff and Company F of the Connecticut National Guard collided with another train on the Naugatuck division. Four members of the train crews were killed and several of the governor's party were hurt.

HEAT IS TO CONTINUE

WASHINGTON FORECAST HOLDS OUT LITTLE PROSPECT FOR RELIEF THIS WEEK.

Central States Will Be Visited by Lower Temperatures—Frosts in Northwest.

Washington, Sept. 7.—Cooler during the coming week is promised to the central part of the country by the weather bureau, but no prospect is held out for relief in the east and south, and even higher temperatures are indicated for the northwest.

"The eastward movement of a northwestern high pressure area," the weekly bulletin issued tonight says, "will be attended by lower temperatures early in the week over the central plains states, the Missouri and upper Mississippi valleys and the upper lake region and probably by some moderation in the Ohio Valley and the lower lake region. Light frosts are probable Monday among the lowlands of North Dakota and northwestern Minnesota."

In the east and south temperature changes during the week will not be decided, while in the northwest it will be warmer during Monday, and by the middle of the week temperatures will be rising generally over the central and western portions of the country, followed by a fall over the northwest toward the end of the week.

CARDINAL VIVES Y TUTO DEAD

Prefect of Congregation for Religious Affairs Succumbs to Operation for Appendicitis.

Rome, Sept. 7.—Cardinal Joseph Calasanotus Vives y Tuto, prefect of the congregation for religious affairs, died today. Recently he had undergone an operation for appendicitis.

Cardinal Vives y Tuto was born at San Andres de Llaveneras, diocese of Barcelona, in 1854. He was created and proclaimed cardinal June 19, 1899. Early in the summer it was reported that he had become insane. But later physicians diagnosed his case as neurasthenia and he retired to a monastery.

The cardinal acquired a prominent position at the Vatican after the election of Pope Pius X. and has been considered a probable candidate for the succession.

MOB THREATENS NEGRO.

Oklahoma, City, Okla., Sept. 7.—Word has been received here that a mob has surrounded the Logan county jail at Guthrie, Okla., threatening to lynch Lon Green, negro restaurant keeper, who shot and killed Patrolmen Lon Muxlow and Caldwell when they attempted to place him under arrest this afternoon.

Sheriff Mahoney started in an automobile to take Green to the Perry jail in order to escape the mob. Four miles south of Muthall, the sheriff's automobile went dead and the mob, following in six automobiles, started on foot in pursuit of the sheriff and prisoner across country.

According to Dr. I. Block, voluntary weather observer, the cool weather of yesterday will prevail again today, with no indication of rain. The weather is still unsettled, but it is probable that the present disturbance will not result in any rain for Waco and vicinity.

Local Temperatures.
Local temperatures for the twenty-four hours ending yesterday at 7 p. m., as reported by Dr. Block, are as follows: Maximum 87, minimum 77; barometer 29.97; humidity 75. The total wind passage was 98 miles, or slightly more than 4 miles per hour; the greatest velocity was 7 miles between 6:30 and 7:30 p. m. Saturday.

Washington Forecast.
Washington, Sept. 7.—Forecast: East Texas—Local thundershowers Monday; Tuesday fair except showers near coast; moderate east to southeast winds.
West Texas—Local thundershowers Monday; Tuesday fair and warmer.

JEROME TRIAL TODAY

ANNOUNCES OVER LONG DISTANCE TELEPHONE WILL BE ON HAND.

Thaw Spends Quiet Day in Coaticook Jail—Removal Will Be Made Quietly.

Coaticook, Quebec, Sept. 7.—Unless a hitch occurs, Wm. Travers Jerome, specially retained by New York State to secure the return of Harry Kendall Thaw to Montreal, will appear before District Magistrate Mullen tomorrow afternoon to answer charges of gambling.

His case had been set for hearing on Thursday, September 11, but both sides agreed tonight to advance it and Jerome announced over long distance telephone from Montreal that he would be here without fail. He was on the point of leaving for New York, under the impression that his case would not be called tomorrow.

Magistrate Mullen of Sherbrooke agreed to hear the case, displacing Justice of the Peace James S. McKee, who signed the warrant for Jerome's arrest and subsequently denounced him in court when Jerome left town after being admitted to $500 bail. Jerome was arrested last Thursday after playing poker with New York newspaper men and was released on $500 bail. He went to Montreal to prepare for the court battle when Thaw is arraigned on a writ of habeas corpus on September 15.

No word had come to Coaticook tonight from the department of the Interior at Ottawa as to when Thaw will be taken to Montreal for his hearing September 15 before the king's bench on the writ of habeas corpus obtained by his counsel. The quarters here are comfortable and the immigration agents in charge said again today that Thaw might be held until the last moment.

Wants No More Stir.
"The department does not desire to stir up any more excitement about the Thaw case than is absolutely necessary," said T. B. Williams, one of the immigration officers.

"When Thaw is removed it will be as quietly as possible."

Thaw's Sunday was perhaps the most uneventful day since his arrival in Canada. He had only two callers, his stenographer and his local counsel, W. L. Shurtleff. Most of the day the prisoner spent reading about himself in the newspapers. The officers volunteered to take him for a walk if he felt in need of exercise, but Thaw declined.

WILL PROBE CONVICTS' DEATH

Dr. Steiner Believes Did Not Smother, Suspects Poisoned Air in Dark Room.

Austin, Sept. 7.—A new feature may develop in the death of the convicts at Camp Number 3 on the Harlem farm with the probe to be instituted by the state officials under the guidance of Governor Colquitt and the attorney general's department.

Dr. Steiner, state health officer, believes it impossible that the men could have smothered to death unless gas or some other poisonous impure air had somehow entered the air breathed by the convicts under punishment in the dark room. This possibility will be probed and no effort spared to place the blame.

Governor Colquitt was apprised of the mishap early this morning by Hon. Cabell, former chief of the board of prison commissioners. He immediately discussed the matter with Dr. Polquitt in session with Assistant Attorney General C. A. Cureton and Steiner with the conclusion above reached. During the day Governor Colquitt and Mr. Sweeton left this afternoon to assist in prosecuting the case.

Under the advice of the state officials immediately following the information of the accident the guards directly connected with the camp were placed under arrest.

Coming at this time, this incident will be a strong argument for those advocating the restoration of the bat, said Governor Colquitt tonight. "As long as I am governor," however, the bat will never be restored to usage as a means of punishment for the convicts in the control of the state.

"Every effort will be made to probe the matter to the bottom and no expense will be spared in placing the blame where it rightfully belongs," added the governor.

Death Prevents Marriage.
Terre Haute, Ind., Sept. 7.—Dr. R. M. Van Cleave of Muncie, was found dead in his room in a hotel here late today by relatives of Miss Lillian Brosman of Marshall, Ill., to whom he was to have been married at noon. There were no indications of self-destruction and Coroner F. H. Jett announced he would hold an autopsy.

The two were in a local hospital when Dr. Van Cleave was an interne, Miss Brosman being a trained nurse.

May Ship Explosives for Mining Uses Into Mexico

Washington, Sept. 7.—The state department announced today that shipments of dynamite and other explosives needed for working the mines in Mexico would be authorized as heretofore.

Literally interpreted, President Wilson's Mexican message to congress indicated that the exportation to Mexico from the United States of explosives, even for industrial purposes, would be discontinued. However, when representatives of the mining interests represented to the state department that this would work a great hardship, they were told that such a step was not contemplated.

Every precaution will be taken by the government to guarantee that none of the explosives permitted to be shipped from the United States shall be diverted from strict industrial uses. It is understood that President Wilson also will authorize the exportation of limited quantities of arms for Americans in Mexico to use for self defense, but any such orders from the White House will be exceptional. Soon after the president announced that an embargo would be placed on all arms out of this country,

15,000 CITIZENS OF TOKIO IN MASS MEETING DENOUNCE JAPANESE DIPLOMACY.

WIPE OUT THE INSULT

WANT ASSASSINATION OF POLITICAL DIRECTOR AVENGED.

CITE THE CALIFORNIA TROUBLE

Deery Ministry and Treatment of Sights to Nation's Honor—Say Incidents Unbearable.

London, Sept. 8.—A Tokio dispatch to the Mail says:

"The government announces that it is formulating terms for presentation to China charging the Nanking murders and insults offered to two Japanese military officers."

Citizens' Demands.

Tokio, Sept. 7.—The assassination of Muratori Ake, director of the political bureau of the Japanese foreign office, has inflamed the masses and today a dramatic chapter in the history of the new Japan was written.

Fifteen thousand persons gathered in mass meeting in Hibiya park, calling for military action against China. A majority of these marched to the foreign office and clamored for admission. They demanded the dispatch of troops to China to take such measures as were necessary to obtain satisfaction for the killing of Japanese at Nanking and failing this the resignation of the minister of foreign affairs, Baron Nobuaki Makino.

The speakers denounced the emptiness of Japanese diplomacy, in connection with the California land question and China, and called for the resumption of the Japanese flag at Nanking should be wiped out. The manifestation was clearly an explosion of popular resentment against the ministry in its treatment of the California and Chinese questions.

Keep Soldiers Away.

Profiting by the lesson of the riots which followed the conclusion of peace between Russia and Japan, the government reduced the risk of violence today by refusing to allow a single soldier or policeman at the scene.

The manifestos, many of whom were students, were orderly during the early part of the proceedings. A score of agitators including a girl, decried Japanese diplomacy and declared that it had never contributed to the upbuilding of the empire and had always ended in failure. The incidents in China were declared to be unbearable. Students of the foreign office to take a general stampede, many persons barely escaping being crushed. The crowds surged through the streets, headed by the gesticulating leaders, and reached the foreign office to find that the high iron gates were locked.

Scores of the demonstrators pounded on the gates and called for them to be opened, but in vain. The under officials refused. A delegation was appointed, the members of which climbed the gates, and then ensued a long parley.

Crowd Cheerful.

Meanwhile the crowd was cheerful, but determined. It showered compliments on a beautiful geisha girl struggling by in a rickshaw, but angrily stoned a photographer who was taking pictures of the chief delegate who having returned, mounted the portals to report progress. Perched unsteadily on the pickets he made a fantastic picture and in a harsh harangue declared that the committee demanded either the dispatch of troops to take the retention of the foreign minister.

"We told the officials," he shouted, "that the voice of the people speaks, that the agitation will never end until our demands are granted."

The extraordinary situation continued for five hours, the delegates emerging periodically to pacify the crowd. Finally when the discussion ended they reported that Baron Makino had promised to receive them September 15. This was greeted with howls of derision, and a thousand marched to the foreign minister's residence.

HOT SPRINGS SOLVING HER PROBLEM

Homeless Are Being Cared for—Thousands of Curious Sightseers Flock to Burned City—Militia Keeps Order—Many Offers of Relief Received.

Hot Springs, Ark., Sept. 7.—A crowd of curious sightseers, estimated at between 5,000 and 6,000 people visited Hot Springs today. It would undoubtedly have been larger had not the rain at the request of the relief committee refused to run special trains.

Two companies of the Arkansas militia took charge of the situation today and did efficient work in patrolling the city. As a result there was no disorder of any kind. There have been no looting and the members of the relief committee are taking every precaution to see that no undue advantage is taken of the thousands made homeless by Friday's conflagration.

The relief committee is solving the problem of housing the sufferers in a satisfactory manner. Practically every remaining home in Hot Springs has been thrown open to the sufferers. The Iron Mountain railroad today had a force of 200 men at work building a temporary wooden building to serve as a depot.

By tomorrow it is expected that conditions will be as nearly normal as is possible under the circumstances. With offers of relief pouring in from all sides the situation tonight is distinctly encouraging to those in charge.

Horses of Fire.

It was learned today that it was due to the heroism of S. R. W. Clark, engineer at the city's electrical plant, directly in the path of the flames, that there was a plentiful supply of water with which to fight the fire Friday night.

Clark, on duty when the fire started, remained at his engine, which supply the motive power for pumping water into the city's reservoir until the timbers in the engine room began to fall. Before he left he set the turbines at top speed.

In leaving the building he was struck several times by falling debris, but escaped with only minor cuts and bruises.

The fact that one building was saved was due to a crowd of small boys, who, under the leadership of an 11-year-old lad, raised a saloon and saturated the roof and sides of the structure with a plentiful supply of water. The building, the sole source of revenue of a little girl, was blistered but did not burn.

by the constitutionalists, appealed to American army officers this morning for an order requiring General Carranza to permit the two men to enter Mexico.

Colonel Sibley, in charge of the Fourteenth cavalry, was also requested to make use of the forces under his command that Marshall and James be allowed to pass through the constitutionalists' lines in pursuance of their private business; but the army officer declined to intervene.

At the constitutionalist headquarters it was announced that both men had been excluded because they were not wanted on the Mexican side and because President Wilson was desirous of keeping Americans out of the country.

Both Marshall and James have large interests in Mexico, the latter having his entire fortune tied up in Mexican property, he asserts. An appeal probably will be made to the British ambassador as well as to the department of state at Washington.

Paris in Criticism.
Paris, Sept. 7.—The Temps this morning in its leading article, reviewing the Mexican situation, concludes: "The simplest way out of the perplexities into which the United States has been thrown by a false diplomatic move would be to confine herself to an attitude of expectant neutrality, at least until the presidential election in October."

"It would be best to recognize the provisional Huerta government while waiting, as the European powers have done. The least trustworthy opinion in Mexico is that Huerta is capable of re-establishing peace, and that the work of pacification is making undeniable progress despite recent difficulties. The attitude of the United States, in which the revolutionists find encouragement, is certainly not the smallest of these."

Constitution Lists Victory.
Eagle Pass, Sept. 7.—Three hundred federalists encamped a few miles east of San Buena Ventura were surprised by six hundred constitutionalists yesterday and more than one hundred were killed, according to official advices received at the constitutionalist headquarters this morning.

The losses on the constitutionalist side were reported eight killed and

MIRACLES OF TODAY

Performed by New Texas Earth Product—Demonstration in Large Cities.

Demonstration and displays of Vitalitas are now being conducted in large cities throughout Texas and will in the next few months be opened in important cities through the entire country.

No product of Nature has ever sprung into such tremendous popularity in so brief a time. The laboratory in Houston, the only place in the world where Vitalitas is extracted, are being rushed to meet the demand. Inquiries from everywhere pour in regarding it. They come from people who have despaired of earthly help, but who still cling to a faint hope that Nature may have produced something that will bring them relief. They wonder if Vitalitas is that something.

It is performing real modern day miracles for the sick. It is banishing disease conditions where every other known remedy has failed. It is giving back life to many on the brink of the grave. It is demonstrating that Nature is the greatest doctor of all. No man or woman should despair if they have not tried this marvelous new earth fluid.

Vitalitas is antagonistic to all diseased conditions. It attacks weakened, impotent or diseased tissues throughout the body. It instills a new flow of vital force that sweeps away stomach troubles, ailments of liver, kidneys, bowels and blood. No matter if chronic or of how long standing, Vitalitas will be found effective. It has no harmful ingredient and the most delicate invalid may take it.

You can sample Vitalitas and see a display of it today at the Powers-Kelly Drug Co.

BEAUMONT MILL FIRE

PLANT OF JOSEY-MILLER COMPANY DESTROYED—LOSS $50,000.

Concern Suffers Second Sunday Fire in Two Weeks—New Machinery Is Lost.

Beaumont, Sept. 7.—The Josey-Miller company's feed mill, elevator and warehouse, all one structure, was destroyed by fire this morning, entailing a loss of $50,000. Two weeks ago today the same company's warehouse for hay was destroyed at a loss of $22,000. The origin of both fires is a mystery.

In each instance the flames originated inside and on Sunday when no one was in the buildings. Machinery for doubling the grinding capacity of the mill was installed Saturday, which would have given a capacity of 5000 bags a day.

Deaths and Burials.

J. K. Hopkins.
Alarmed because of the stillness of her husband at 3 o'clock yesterday morning, Mrs. J. K. Hopkins of 1301 Cottonwood street investigated and found that he was dead.

The body was in a cramped position, as if he had died in agony, and a small amount of white powder, resembling arsenic, was found on the floor near the body.

The city health officer examined the body and reported that death was due to poisoning.

The body was prepared yesterday morning and shipped in the afternoon to Fort Worth, where Hopkins and his wife lived before they came to Waco, about five weeks ago. Since that time he has been employed as a solicitor for the Dallas News.

Hopkins leaves a widow, who was with him at the time of his death, and also four children by a former marriage, three of which live with their mother in Dallas and the other, a married daughter, lives at Fort Worth. He was 44 years old.

Personal.

J. H. McCullough of Dawson spent yesterday in Waco.

Louis Michelson of Cincinnati is spending a few days in Waco on business.

A. S. and Ben Jones of Grandview are in Waco on business, guests at the Metropole.

R. W. Lay of Yorkum is in Waco on business.

E. L. Dalton of Dallas is a business visitor in Waco.

Jay Sewell of Mart spent yesterday in Waco.

IF CHILD IS CROSS, FEVERISH AND SICK

Look, Mother! If Tongue is Coated Give "California" Syrup of Figs.

Children love this "fruit laxative" and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely. A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels and the result is they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sour, then your little one becomes cross, half sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California" Syrup of Figs and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California" Syrup of Figs because it is perfectly harmless; children love it and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California" Syrup of Figs, which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California" Fig Syrup company. Refuse any other kind with contempt.

TEN COMMANDMENTS

CONGREGATION OF CENTRAL CHRISTIAN DISCUSSES TABOOS OF LAW.

Meanings Are Broader Than Literal Translations—Will Apply to All Acts of Everyday Life.

"Boiling Down the Ten Commandments to Fit Modern Life" was the subject of a round-table service at the Central Christian church last night, led by the pastor, Rev. F. N. Calvin. The evening services of the church are novel in that the pastor shares the "sermonizing" with the congregation.

Some thoughts suggested at the service were as follows:

There is a mistaken idea today as to the basis of morality. Men teach their children and the world itself is groping for a standard with a tendency to disregard to fundamentals of morality—the teachings of Christ. The commandments were the constitution of Israel's morality and all that came later was but by-ways. All rests with man's relationship to God. If we ever have a moral citizenship there must be a religious basis.

The summary of all the commandments is "Thou shalt love the Lord, thy neighbor with all thy heart and thy neighbor as thyself." God did not make the commandments right by simply decreeing them, but they are eternal principles existing from the time of human understanding. God merely codified these principles and put them in simple form.

It is imperative that man keep the Sabbath, for it is his religious salvation. When the busy cares of life absorb a man he is ordinarily not in a mood for worship. There must be times when Christians can open their hearts and commune with God. As sure as America converts Sunday into a secular day it will destroy reverence for Jehovah. We can not get along without the observance of the Sabbath if we would have religion, and without religion there will be no lasting morality.

The commandment "Thou shalt not kill," means more than simply shooting a man down or stabbing him with a knife. It means that some employer must stand responsible for the premature deaths of thousands of boys and girls who grind out their lives amid the whirl of machinery. No man has the right to build a fortune out of human blood.

No ancient law went back to the motives of men but Jesus pushes back to the origin—the thoughts of men. He says not only that murder is wrong, but that man must not be angry with his brother. Not only shall man not commit adultery, but he shall not lust after woman.

"Stealing" applies more than to slipping the hand into a pocket and filching a few coins. It means that in social life a citizen is commanded against securing unlawfully another man's property. Taking a man's time without due recompense is nothing else but stealing. An employer has no right to pay a man less than his services are worth, and the employee who does not give full return for the salary received is a thief. Stealing a person's character by insidious gossip or malicious lying is more heinous than pilfering.

Back of the form of the law is essentially the spirit of the law—the motives and interests of men. The underlying principles of the commandments are more than the literal translation.

GO TO WEST TUESDAY

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS WILL VISIT BEDSIDE OF SICK MEMBER.

It is very likely that three members of the county commissioners' board and County Judge George N. Deaton will go to West Tuesday in order to have a full attendance to fix the county tax rate. Commissioner F. L. Williams, who is ill, will not be able to attend the regular monthly meeting of the commission which begins this morning. Judge Deaton telephoned Mr. Williams last night to ascertain if he would be able to come to Waco Monday or Tuesday to meet with the board. The reply was that he would not. The law requires that all members of the board be present when the rate is fixed. The rate should have been fixed at the August meeting. Mr. Williams was ill at that time, so the matter was allowed to go over until September. It now appears he will not be able to attend the meeting this month. Judge Deaton stated, after he talked with Mr. Williams, that he had not discussed the matter with other members of the board, but they will probably go to West Tuesday in order to fix the rate. Mr. Williams is able to enter into a discussion of the question of tax rate.

The rate will be 33-1/2 cents on the $100, having already been unofficially fixed. The meeting of the board will make the rate legal.

At today's meeting the board will take up among other things the question of the proposed rehabilitation of the old suspension bridge. Several plans for proposed structures will be presented by the county engineer. It is also probable that members of the city commission will call on the county board with reference to this matter.

tioning of the members of the American Bankers' association, who held the stand last week, and have advanced many tentative suggestions as to their own views of necessary currency legislation.

Senator Weeks, republican, will attempt this week to force the committee to act on his resolution putting off consideration of the currency bill until December 2. Democratic leaders have made it plain that President Wilson does not favor such a course and that his influence will be exerted against it.

The tariff bill as it passes the senate this week will represent an average reduction of nearly 5 per cent from the rates of duty fixed in the bill as it originally passed the house.

The final fight in the senate over the free wool and free sugar duties will occur tomorrow or Tuesday, when the bill goes to its final passage; but no modifications in the measure are expected.

TEACHERS IN DEMAND

FOURTEEN OF LAST YEAR WILL NOT SERVE WACO THIS TERM.

Various Causes Are Given for Vacancies—All Towns Report Need for Teachers.

The Waco school board of trustees has experienced much trouble this year in filling all the positions in the various schools of the city. This was caused by a large number of resignations and the general scarcity of teachers over the entire state.

Superintendent J. C. Lattimore reports that from requests he has received for teachers, all the boards in the state are experiencing the same difficulty that has confronted the local board.

A total of fourteen teachers who taught in the schools of Waco last year have failed to apply for reappointment, or have resigned after they had been elected for the ensuing year. This has caused the board to have to do much searching for competent teachers to fill the vacancies.

Following is a list of the teachers who were in the Waco schools last year, but who, for various reasons, will not teach here again this year: High School—Miss Mabel Cooley,

Local News Notes.

R. D. Clark was arrested at McGregor yesterday by Constable J. J. Williams. He was brought to Waco last night and is held to await the arrival of the Belton officers.

Taking a pane of glass from a window at the rear of the building, burglars some time Saturday night or Sunday morning entered the Huggins & Denison grocery store, corner Twelfth and Morrow streets. Goods consisting of cigars, candies, cakes and chewing gum were taken, indicating to the police that the work was that of boys. Five or six boxes of cigars were taken, and pieces of candy and cake were strewn around the building, indicating the burglars had enjoyed some of the sweets of their haul. The front door was opened from the inside, the burglars coming out of the building in that manner.

THE PROBATION OFFICER.

Our commendation to County Judge Denton is equal with our congratulations to Dr. E. E. Ingram on the minister's appointment to be McLennan county probation officer. For we think none in the county could have been named to this most responsible office with more approval from citizens; especially from parents. Mothers of Waco and the county's other communities know the Rev. E. E. Ingram, his character and the nature of his service. As minister of Central Presbyterian church his work has been notable, strong. As a citizen of this city and county for nine years, Dr. Ingram has been among the most indefatigable workers for progress. He understands and labors for civic improvement on many lines. He has been a distinct factor, among his parishioners and business men generally, in the commercial organizations' campaigns for civic and county betterment. He believes in and is enthusiastic for the future of Central Texas; he talks, writes and preaches Waco's advancement.

Dr. Ingram is fitted to be probation officer of a large county—and this not only by reason of his profession, its need of close touch with the child in his guidance spiritual and moral. He has worked with boys, particularly in the boys' work departments of Young Men's Christian Associations. He has gone among the boys in the streets and in their gatherings that were in no wise of religious nature. He knows the child mind, the nature and heart of the young. He is a father, big-hearted and sympathetic. And, knowing something of the conditions of juvenile training and "correction" in Texas—state, county and city—we are further attracted to McLennan's first probation officer and glad for this appointment by his announcement that he will make like investigation for himself, institutional and otherwise; he will devote all the time to this work he can take from the duties of his ministry, will office in the court house and give complete official status to these new activities.

Dr. Ingram says he will go to Gatesville, to the "State Institution for the Training of Juveniles," to "see why boys should not be sent to the reformatory." We have supplied him in the past year, and can anew supply him, with many a reason why boys should not be sent to the Gatesville place under present conditions. No need again to discuss that situation. We are particularly glad of the naming of Dr. Ingram, having confidence in the man and his ability and character, because we believe he will give every effort to keeping this county's wayward youth out of Gatesville; that he will not be indifferent, complaisant, disposed to make of his office a sinecure and put the brunt of juvenile corrective labor on Superintendent Eddins up the way.

The care, restraint and guidance of young delinquents in this State need much of improvement. We think Dr. Ingram will work genuine improvement locally. The new juvenile law by Mr. Patrick Henry is a good law. If it is honestly and thoroughly enforced the results will be good for Texas cities. But let there be no mistake; the work of probation officer is long, arduous and a demand for versatility and humane understanding. Believing Dr. Ingram can supply these qualities, can make good, we express the hope and venture the recommendation to the county commissioners that his employment be begun at the full legal salary, $1,200. Dr. Ingram's standing in the county, his experience and the announced scope of his service as probation officer entitle him to this, we think.

As probation officer, Dr. Ingram may be assured he will have the cooperation of the Waco Morning News and whatever of sensible, humane reform he may project to lessen youthful lawlessness, street loafing and vandalism in the county will be supported by the county's organizations—especially by the Mothers' clubs and the clubs of the women's federation. Waco already has too many young delegates in Gatesville. Many of these could be trained in the way of decent citizenship by a conscientious share of attention, care and comfort at home. For the only crime of some of the youngsters has been homelessness.

We believe with Dr. Ingram in this service the name of the county for orderliness will be bettered and several citizens will be saved to the State each year. Success to him in this work.

AN INDUSTRIAL EFFICIENCY FACTOR.

A special number of the Bulletin of the Chicago Tuberculosis Institute is based on the theory that the health of the worker is an essential element in the problem of industrial efficiency. "From the point of view of the employer this should be considered, if in no other way, at least as an economic question. Failure of the captains of industry to recognize and act on this fact is a reflection on their capability as managers of great enterprises. Recently the importance of the welfare of workers has been pretty generally recognized among the employers of labor and in an awakening not altogether selfish, it is believed; and efforts made by employers to improve conditions are most gratifying." An interesting record of measures and methods adopted by a number of great enterprises in Chicago to attain greater efficiency and to safeguard and improve the health conditions among employees is found in this bulletin.

This private philanthropic organization in 1911, in pursuance of the purpose of its organization, considered a plan for the early detection of tuberculosis among employees and appointed a special committee on factories, which marked the beginning of a systematic campaign for the medical examination of employees in Chicago. Emphasis was at first laid on the detection of tuberculosis, but later the campaign was extended to the general medical examination in health and efficiency, and a definite scheme for the examination for tuberculosis, as well as an outline of a method for the general medical examination of workers, was prepared by the factory committee. Efforts to enlist the employers of labor in the plan met gratifying response, and through conferences between the committee and lay and medical representatives of individual companies increasing interest in the subject has been created.

The Bulletin contains articles by the medical chiefs of seven large employing concerns in Chicago setting forth the organization, plans and methods of each in assuring greater health efficiency among employees and giving a summary of the results so far attained. Among the companies represented in these articles are two large mail order houses, an agricultural implement factory, one of the packing companies, a telephone company, a lighting company and a railway company. The experience of these representative companies constitutes an interesting record and may serve as an example and a guide to other industries in the development of efficiency through improved health conditions among the workers.

FOR DEMOCRATIC REMEDY.

Commissioner Worcester's report on the existence of chattel slavery in the Philippines is promptly made the text of anti-imperialist preaching, the Boston Transcript notes, and we are told that if American rule were not a failure the Thirteenth Amendment of the Constitution of the United States would enforce itself in the Philippines and put an end to the "peculiar domestic institution." How, it says, without "appropriate legislation," slavery in the Philippines is to be extinguished, we are not informed. The Philippine Commission proposed that the Philippine Assembly, which is a body of local law makers and corresponds to the popular branch of one of our state legislatures, should pass a bill penalizing the slave trade. The Assembly refused and tabled the bill which the Commission submitted. Briefly, when the Commission asked that it be armed with the requisite authority to deal with the slave traders summarily, the Assembly, several of whose members hold bondsman, covered slave trading from prosecution.

"The collision between the Commission, which desires to extinguish slavery, and the Assembly, which desires to maintain it, is luminous of the difficulties attendant upon every effort to procure the adoption of Occidental ideas by peoples essentially Oriental. The Commission is the upper house of the Philippine Legislature. The Commission is appointive and is composed of four Americans and four Filipinos. Above it is the governor general, who is ex-officio its president. In the Commission we find American ideas predominant; in the Assembly the local Philippine tradition is the governing influence. Its members include all the 'smart' politicians of the islands, native bosses and would-be bosses, men who learned from the Spanish rule only its worst lessons. The Assembly, which we set up nearly six years ago, has been a tumultuous body and, as its attitude toward slavery demonstrates, a reactionary body as well."

If the blocking by the Philippine Assembly of the Philippine Commission's purpose to put down the slave trade is luminous of the incapability of the former body to align itself with the humanity of the twentieth century, it is likewise luminous of the responsibility and duty of the Congress of the United States. Congress constitutionally has the same authority over the Philippines as it has over other territories of the United States. The Philippine Assembly exists by act of Congress. The whole structure of our administration of the islands rests upon the same foundation. Congress can disallow or annul the acts of territorial legislatures. More than once it has exercised this power and set aside territorial enactments repugnant to the Constitution or to sound public policy. It can, if it will, equip the Philippine Commission with all the machinery it needs to suppress the practices at which the Philippine Assembly convives. The democrats are now in control of the federal administration and of Congress. There is the opportunity to stamp out Philippine opposition to the abolition of the slave trade, and theirs will be the responsibility if the Philippine Commission is left powerless to make short work of an abuse associated with the social system of the islands. If the democrats really intend to give the Philippines their independence, all the more is it incumbent on them to make root and branch work of slavery before American rule is ended.

FEARLESS PUBLIC HEALTH OFFICERS NEEDED.

City and county physicians, sanitary and food inspectors, municipal health boards' members, State officials so entitled, strictly speaking are "public health officers." Is there any significance in the fact that the press of Texas, ever generously ready and unlimited in its praise of proper official service for the protection of the public health, has laudatory comment but rarely for this or that progressive, modern, fearless policy and action of some particular public health officer or inspector or health board? While, on the contrary, editorial pleas, both original and in support of the action of local organizations—usually the women's clubs—appear almost weekly in behalf of a movement to "clean up" the town? Is there any significance, insofar as concerns the routine service of city public health officials, in the fact that such pleas accustomedly take the form of urging that every day in the year be "clean up" day, and that decent citizens make this observance a matter of community pride while health officialdom bestir itself and get after the careless, the indifferent and the ignorant? We think there is much significance—and actual experience has given us to attach more significance to such pleas when we consider the reasons why some of this class of officials in Texas are disposed to minimize the fact that the local press does not often have occasion to bestow praise for their work.

Fearless health officers are the need for Texas cities. We are not, of course, including in this conclusion the exceptions: There are some health officers who ignore the local poll tax list to a greater degree than does the average; who go about enforcing statutes and ordinances as fearlessly and impartially of considerations of political pull and financial standing of violators, as they can by dodging the appointive power until after they have filed their complaints in court. Such clean cut public servants have no superior in municipal officialdom; they are the most valuable factor in community health and advancement, for the unhealthy city cannot progress. We are led to this reiteration by interesting discussion, in Springfield (Mo.) Leader, of the school for health officers which has been established by Harvard University and Massachusetts Institute of Technology in active co-operation and which will issue a "certificate of public health" to graduates, but the degree will be higher than that of "doctor of public health" by Harvard and certain similar degrees offered by colleges and technical schools.

The new school of public health is a graduate school. The seventy courses, broadly speaking, combine the medical side of sanitation with the engineering side; but only graduates of full four years' professional courses leading up to the "public health" specialty will be admitted to this school. Candidates for the "certificate of public health" must therefore have attained already the four years' degree in some college of recognized standing, in civil or sanitary engineering, medicine, biology, public health, or relative field of professional lines. Public health work is based on medical science, but the work of the sanitary engineer or the public health officer is very much wider than that of the purely medical health officer. Protecting the health of the public requires a command of much engineering knowledge, and also a deep knowledge of general human living conditions, sympathy with the masses, and interest in their welfare and progress. A public health officer should know, not merely the medical side, but a good deal about designing and building sewers, reservoirs, aqueducts, purification plants, and so on; he should have a thorough knowledge of the preparation, interpretation and use of vital statistics; of causes and prevention of excessive infant mortality; of social service work; of hygiene, mental and moral, as well as physical; of prevention of infection by way of mouth, eyes, ears and nose; of dust dangers, and factory conditions of health and the welfare of workers; of eugenics and genetics; of public finances; of immigration; and he must be possessed of a strong executive character and of a very rich endowment of tact.

A public health officer not trained in this all around fashion is inefficient by just so much as he lacks of the broad knowledge above outlined. There is room in the United States for every graduate of such a school for countless years to come, and the salaries they will command will be among the best professional incomes possible to insure to oneself. The country is just awakening to the necessities and the possibilities of this sort of work, and there will never be enough thoroughly trained men to fill the demand for the exceptionally capable administrators and executive officers. In this, it may be remarked that this is one profession in which women may take an active part without trying competition that they would have to face in many other lines of professional work.

Nothing but the conditions under which the State's public printing is turned out at Austin, in contract lump instead of by the sensible method of permitting each institution to arrange for its own printing—locally, if possible—is responsible for the fact that the latest Bulletin of the Texas State Board of Health to reach our table bears date of "May, 1913." But its belated printing does not detract from the worth of this Bulletin. The editor, who is Mr. Ralph P. Babcock, secretary of the State health board and State registrar of vital statistics, is making the Bulletin more attractive with each issue. It is thoroughly representative of the several activities of the State board and generally touches on health matters that are being currently discussed and reported in the press through Texas. We can recommend in the last number, especially, "The Protection of Self"—a discussion of the use of anti-meningitis vaccine and its probable value as a prophylactic measure, by Dr. Henry Hartman, who is retiring from the position of assistant State health officer and State bacteriologist, to be head of the department of pathology in the State university's medical school, Galveston. Dr. Hartman had much to do with the State's investigation and combating of meningitis outbreaks and writes with authority. Of much interest also are Mary Heaton Vorse's treatment of the dangers of cheap candy for children; "The Citizen and the Public Health," by Dr. A. M. Stimson, passed assistant surgeon in the federal public health service; Dr. G. H. Bogart's comment, "Qualifications for Parenthood," Mary Louise Graham's, "The Training of a Child," a survey of the progress in sterilization legislation; Dr. R. H. Bennett's prescriptions for infant feeding; an excellent disquisition on country schools and rural sanitation, a theme now uppermost in the discussion of Texas teachers' assemblies, by Dr. C. H. Stiles, professor of zoology in the hygienic laboratory of the federal public health service; Dr. J. M. Eager, a surgeon in that service, has an article on the importance of right living, "Fighting Trim"; and there are the usual surveys of the work of fly extermination and the work of the State hookworm commission—the latter by Dr. Maurice H. Boerner, director. Editor Babcock's "health paragraphs" are always interesting and in every respect the Bulletin is worth sending for each month, worth reading carefully and worth preserving.

Mr. Harry M. Johnston, "Exchange Interviewer" of the Houston Post, has, his column tells us, gone to El Paso to represent his newspaper on the border during the mix-up in Mexico, "hence a substitute salutes the public" in "Exchange Interviews." Young Mr. Johnston has his work cut out for him; so has his "substitute." We do not yet know the latter's identity, but his first production is all that could be desired. The public knows that he who went away to watch the fighting and he who is at home to watch the forum will get results.

There should be prompt, wholly liberal response by the business men and citizens of this city generally, and of every Texas community, to the appeal of Hot Springs' officials for substantial aid in the rehabilitation of the poorer sections of the fire-swept area, and in giving comfort to the homeless from other States who are in that city. We must not forget that any city of our own State stands in danger of a like plight. Americans never are chary of humane response in such public calamities.

BRAZIL'S FREEDOM NOW WITHOUT WAR

COUNTRYMEN OF WACO ORGANIZE CLUB AND SEND TELEGRAM TO AMBASSADOR.

INDEPENDENCE DAY IS SEPT. 7

A. O. Bernardo Gives History of Political Progress—Republic Secured. Slaves Freed Without Blood.

September 7th, the immortal date to every Brazilian as the day when his country passed through a bloodless revolution from the rule of a king to the freedom of a republic was celebrated yesterday by a little group of patriotic Brazilians of Waco, organizing a club and sending a telegram to their ambassador at Washington. The celebrants were mostly students of Baylor university who came to this country recently with a returning missionary. The following speech delivered by A. O. Bernardo yesterday gives a concise and explicit account of Brazilian independence:

"Away from home on this great day, when the hosts of my native land are gathered in a chorus of voices, celebrating the nine-first anniversary of Brazil's independence, I can even see the children dressed in white and in a joyful procession leading the enthusiastic phalanx which follows them to the place previously selected, where some gifted patriot will address the inspiring multitude.

"Oh that I only could picture that beautiful sight!

"But anyway, what is the real meaning of it? What makes this people so happy and enthusiastic? There are reasons for such an expression of joy and gladness—a dependent people have become independent!

"And though independence itself is one reason for rejoicing, a still greater one is that these people are proud as no other people under heaven—and rejoice in the fact that they have shown to the world a unique method of acquiring the desired independence.

"Yes, they must rejoice and they do, in that they have a great and unique history.

"Brazil has reasons to boast of her mighty river—the Amazon—of which one of our poets says: 'It was necessary that the Atlantic be made to hold her beautiful hills, mountains and valleys, her natural resources and of her beautiful capital city, the most beautiful in the world, and of thousands of other things, but to my mind the greatest thing she has to boast of is her history.'

"Some one has said that Central and South America is the land of almost continuous revolutions. Well, I don't think he had Brazil in mind or else he missed the word. He should have said evolution when he applied his statement to Brazil. It does not mean that we claim to be perfect, but that we have done well.

"Brazil was discovered in the year 1500 by a Portuguese admiral, Pedro Alvares Cabral. Portugal took possession of the new-found land, but for a very long time neglected it. There were many attempts, especially on the part of the Dutch and French, to colonize Brazil. For a time it seemed that the efforts of the Dutch would be crowned with success, for they almost dominated the entire northern territory, which was sometimes called 'Dutch Brazil.' The king of Portugal saw then that greater attention must be given to Brazil if it was to be held. And so he divided up the new-found land into twelve captaincies, the ancient division of Brazil. This, however, did not solve the difficult problem, for the Dutch were so strong and also the hundred different tribes of Indians in their primitive state of savagery made the task no easy one. A few of the captains, however, met with some success in their respective territories or captaincies. But the rights reserved to the Portuguese crown were almost null, a thing of no efficacy, and the captain, who had exaggerated privileges, was still powerless to colonize and protect his vast territory against the Indians and foreign pirates, since he had had to act independent of the other captain, there being no co-operation whatever among them.

Sends a Governor General.

"Considering all these things, the king of Portugal was forced to make a change in the government of Brazil, and so sent Governor Thome de Lencastre, the first general governor of Brazil. He was very prosperous in his government, leaving the country in a far better condition. Many other governors followed in succession, among whom Mem de Sa deserves special mention. He was the third governor of Brazil, and his history says, the only one who rightly merited the title of 'The Father of his country.' He carried on many heroic and victorious campaigns against the Indians, reformed the court of justice, energetically fought gambling and finally went on an expedition against the French to the island of Villegaignon. He came back victoriously, having recovered the island from the hands of the French, who offered him no slight resistance.

"In the year 1570 the queen of Portugal, D. Catharina, placed the government of Brazil in the hands of her grandson, King D. Sebastiao. The first step this royal governor of Brazil took was to divide Brazil into two great divisions—north and south. The royal governor, very ambitious of honor and glory, and deceived by traitors, who had been sold to the Jesuits and to Philippe the II, went to Morocco, where he disappeared in the battle of Alcazarquivir. The old D. Henrique Alencastre, but only for two years.

Under Constant Attack.

"By this time Portugal having lost her political independence, Brazil suffered still worse than did the mother country, because she remained neglected and suffered constant attacks from all the great European nations.

"Portugal having regained her political independence, appointed new governors to Brazil. During this time they had a still harder proposition before them, owing to the fact that the Dutch and French were stronger and more ready to offer them resistance. Battles were fought and though the Dutch seemed to be the victors, the brave Portuguese finally drove them out once for all.

"Meantime, in 1778, there was heard in the state of Minas a cry for independence. A little group was dreaming and striving for independence. They held many sessions, even without a definite place in which to meet, and finally adopted a white flag, in the center of which there was the picture of an angel breaking a strong chain, and this inscription in Latin: 'Liberata quo sera tamen.' But soon this little group seemingly had to see their hopes die away, for some of them were put into prison and their leader was condemned to death and later executed. The folly was once more indulged in in trying to kill a principle by killing him who represented it.

"Just at this time Europe was on fire. Napoleon Bonaparte in his unbridled ambition to conquer his great rival—England—published in Berlin the 'Continental Blockade.' And Portugal got into trouble. So, D. Joao the VI, to avoid the destruction of his imperial city, with his family, a great part of his army and friends, moved to Brazil. They were received very enthusiastically by the people in Bahia, where, on January 28, 1808, the notable decree dissolving the monopolies and opening the ports of Brazil to all the nations, was published. In this decree these words may be seen: 'The new coming of the king to Brazil gave a great impulse to the country. Seven years afterwards Brazil was elevated to a kingdom (1815).

"So great were the changes in the government, so great were the impressions made upon the Brazilian people, that they cherished the hope that the king would change the seat of his three kingdoms to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. But how disappointed and grieved they were when on April 26, 1821, they saw the king leaving for Portugal. His going to Portugal was a sign of the declaration of Brazilian independence. The king himself recognized that his leaving would inspire the Brazilians to strive for independence. And so, when he was leaving he said to the Crown Prince Don Pedro: 'Pedro, within a short period Brazil will be independent, and if my saying comes true, place the crown on your own head, before any adventurer gets hold of it.'

"Immediately after the departure of the king the campaign started. D. Pedro began his rule in Brazil in his 33rd year. Soon after the return of the king the court of Portugal asked the king to bring back to the mother country the regent prince of Brazil, in order that he might finish his education by means of travel. When this became known in Brazil, many patriots came together to discuss the matter and unanimously agreed that a committee be sent to the regent prince requesting him not to go to Portugal, but to stay in Brazil. To this committee the prince answered: 'As regards the good of all and for the general felicity of the nation, tell the people I stay.' Afterwards the king appeared in the 'Camjo da Aclamacao,' which means 'the field of the acclamation,' and the people hailed him with the most hearty expressions of gratitude and loyalty.

"Having received the news of an insurrection in the state of Minas, the prince decided to go in person and put an end to it. This he did, being received very enthusiastically by the people of Minas. But on his return to Rio he found the people very much agitated and hurt on account of the treatment the seven representatives of Brazil had received from the court of Portugal. In order to give the nation the assurance of the firmness and stability of his resolution, the prince took upon himself the title of 'Perpetual Protector of Brazil,' and thus severed the last tie which bound Brazil to Portugal.

"In August, 1822, he went back to Minas and on his return passed through Sao Paulo; there he received threatening dispatches from the Portuguese courts which provoked the cry of 'Independencia ou morte.' At this time a noble young prince, surrounded by the beauty of nature on the glorious and historic banks of the Ypiranga river, full of patriotism and devotion to his country, enthusiastically, patriotically and truly cried out with all the forces of his great soul, 'Independence or death!' This happened on the evening of September 7, 1822. And from that glorious moment the Brazilians awoke, an independent people. A people independent, and yet not a single drop of human blood shed! Can this be duplicated in the history of any nation? But this is not all. May 13, 1888, and November 15, 1889, are two other great dates in the history of Brazil, and by no means of less importance, since they are adorned with the same color—no shedding of blood. The first means the abolition of slavery and the second the proclamation of the republic. Three great events that Brazil boasts in her history and proudly says, 'I have no equal.'

ed and suffered constant attacks from all the great European nations.

"Portugal having regained her political independence, appointed new governors to Brazil. During this time they had a still harder proposition before them, owing to the fact that the Dutch and French were stronger and more ready to offer them resistance. Battles were fought and though the Dutch seemed to be the victors, the brave Portuguese finally drove them out once for all.

"Meantime, in 1778, there was heard in the state of Minas a cry for independence. A little group was dreaming and striving for independence. They held many sessions, even without a definite place in which to meet, and finally adopted a white flag, in the center of which there was the picture of an angel breaking a strong chain, and this inscription in Latin: 'Liberata quo sera tamen.' But soon this little group seemingly had to see their hopes die away, for some of them were put into prison and their leader was condemned to death and later executed. The folly was once more indulged in in trying to kill a principle by killing him who represented it.

"Just at this time Europe was on fire. Napoleon Bonaparte in his unbridled ambition to conquer his great rival—England—published in Berlin the 'Continental Blockade.' And Portugal got into trouble. So, D. Joao the VI, to avoid the destruction of his imperial city, with his family, a great part of his army and friends, moved to Brazil. They were received very enthusiastically by the people in Bahia, where, on January 28, 1808, the notable decree dissolving the monopolies and opening the ports of Brazil to all the nations, was published. In this decree these words may be seen: 'The new coming of the king to Brazil gave a great impulse to the country. Seven years afterwards Brazil was elevated to a kingdom (1815).

"So great were the changes in the government, so great were the impressions made upon the Brazilian people, that they cherished the hope that the king would change the seat of his three kingdoms to Rio de Janeiro, Brazil. But how disappointed and grieved they were when on April 26, 1821, they saw the king leaving for Portugal. His going to Portugal was a sign of the declaration of Brazilian independence. The king himself recognized that his leaving would inspire the Brazilians to strive for independence. And so, when he was leaving he said to the Crown Prince Don Pedro: 'Pedro, within a short period Brazil will be independent, and if my saying comes true, place the crown on your own head, before any adventurer gets hold of it.'

"Immediately after the departure of the king the campaign started. D. Pedro began his rule in Brazil in his 33rd year. Soon after the return of the king the court of Portugal asked the king to bring back to the mother country the regent prince of Brazil, in order that he might finish his education by means of travel. When this became known in Brazil, many patriots came together to discuss the matter and unanimously agreed that a committee be sent to the regent prince requesting him not to go to Portugal, but to stay in Brazil. To this committee the prince answered: 'As regards the good of all and for the general felicity of the nation, tell the people I stay.' Afterwards the king appeared in the 'Camjo da Aclamacao,' which means 'the field of the acclamation,' and the people hailed him with the most hearty expressions of gratitude and loyalty.

"Having received the news of an insurrection in the state of Minas, the prince decided to go in person and put an end to it. This he did, being received very enthusiastically by the people of Minas. But on his return to Rio he found the people very much agitated and hurt on account of the treatment the seven representatives of Brazil had received from the court of Portugal. In order to give the nation the assurance of the firmness and stability of his resolution, the prince took upon himself the title of 'Perpetual Protector of Brazil,' and thus severed the last tie which bound Brazil to Portugal.

"In August, 1822, he went back to Minas and on his return passed through Sao Paulo; there he received threatening dispatches from the Portuguese courts which provoked the cry of 'Independencia ou morte.' At this time a noble young prince, surrounded by the beauty of nature on the glorious and historic banks of the Ypiranga river, full of patriotism and devotion to his country, enthusiastically, patriotically and truly cried out with all the forces of his great soul, 'Independence or death!' This happened on the evening of September 7, 1822. And from that glorious moment the Brazilians awoke, an independent people. A people independent, and yet not a single drop of human blood shed! Can this be duplicated in the history of any nation? But this is not all. May 13, 1888, and November 15, 1889, are two other great dates in the history of Brazil, and by no means of less importance, since they are adorned with the same color—no shedding of blood. The first means the abolition of slavery and the second the proclamation of the republic. Three great events that Brazil boasts in her history and proudly says, 'I have no equal.'

Mobile, Sept. 6.—Hitting two pitchers hard and fielding in the most sensational manner, the tail end New Orleans team wrested the Southern League pennant from the Mobile team this afternoon 5 to 2. The defeat administered the locals gave the Atlanta club the championship by the margin of half a game.

Although an overflow crowd, and probably the largest witnessed at the local park, cheered the local club, they were unable to break through the wonderful pitching of Southpaw Finis Wilson and the stonewall defense behind him but once during the nine innings. The brilliant pitching of Wilson beat Mobile. Not a safe hit was registered by the locals until one man had been retired in the sixth. Up to that time Mobile had gotten but three men on bases, all of them on passes and although Starr was worked around to third in the first inning he was killed off at the plate in a double steal.

Wilson was reached for a triple, a single and a double in the sixth, scoring two runs, but he tightened up again and allowed only one more hit.

After New Orleans had gained an advantage of two runs in the first three innings the result was never in doubt, as New Orleans continued to hit the ball hard, while Mobile could do nothing with Wilson. The visiting pitcher received brilliant support. Plannagan in right field made two fine catches, one of them a jumping one-hand stab of a line hit, robbing Robinson of a possible triple, while the New Orleans infield also staged several feature plays.

Hendryx, Erwin and Kraft led in the visitors' batting attack, the three dividing nine of the thirteen hits equally among them. Hendryx's work at bat and on the bases was sufficient to beat Mobile, as he hit for two doubles and a single and scored four runs.

Mobile fans, although keenly disappointed, took the loss of the pennant with good grace and after the game swarmed on the field to congratulate the local players for the game struggle they had put up.

1913 SOUTHERN LEAGUE SEASON MOST SUCCESSFUL IN HISTORY

Atlanta, Sept. 7.—Atlanta has won the pennant for the Southern association's 1913 season, which closed today. This was decided today when New Orleans broke the Mobile-Atlanta tie by winning from Mobile 5 to 2. The loss of the pennant to Atlanta having won 81 games and lost 56, while Mobile was credited with 81 victories and 57 defeats. By creditable work Birmingham finished third. Hard and determined fighting by Chattanooga kept them in fourth place. In the second division Montgomery led, with Memphis, Nashville and New Orleans next in order.

The final week of the 1913 season was the most exciting in the history of the Southern association. Atlanta continuing its desperate dash for the wire, opened the week by taking two games from New Orleans. Then came the series with Mobile, in which Atlanta defeated the league leaders three times, tying the fourth contest, and the final one on Saturday between Atlanta and Mobile the tie remained unbroken.

On today's game, therefore, hinged the outcome of the most remarkable battle ever fought for a Southern association championship. A month ago Atlanta stood fourth in the race, making the climb of that club all the more remarkable. Out of the last 25 games Atlanta won 20, lost 2 and tied one.

Misfortune played its part in contributing to Mobile's defeat, a series of accidents having crippled the team at a time when every player was needed.

A number of important changes in the personnel of the association officials already have been announced. Of these, the most interesting is the signing of Norman Elberfeld, whose contract as manager of the Chattanooga club expired yesterday, as leader of the New Orleans club. Manager John E. Smith, who in one season elevated Atlanta from last place to the top of the column, has been presented with an additional year's contract, lasting through the season of 1915.

President Kavanaugh's refusal to entertain the protests of New Orleans against Mobile because of an alleged irregularity in the construction of the playing field also was a feature of the final week.

During the Atlanta-Mobile series local attendance records were broken. It was stated by an official tonight that the season's highest attendance record since the reorganization of the association.

POSSIBLE PENNANT WINNERS WORRY

New York, Sept. 7.—There has been unmistakable scare in the camps of the probable world's series contenders for several days and the beginning of the new playing week finds anything but a feeling of serene satisfaction prevalent around Shibe park and the Polo Grounds.

Both John McGraw and Connie Mack doubtless believe their respective teams will top the lists when the major league season ends October 5, but each can hardly be realizing that unless his men play better baseball than they have exhibited on most of their recent appearances, the plans for post-season activities of the Giants and Athletics may have to undergo radical revision.

Had the Phillies not halted in their winning run at the critical moment Saturday and dropped two games to the dashing Braves, the Giants would be but six games ahead of the Philadelphia Nationals today. Had the Athletics not experienced a midweek slump and dropped three games ranging to Chicago and Boston, the Athletics lead would have been reduced to three and a half games.

Leaders Break Even.
In each league the best the pace-makers could pry out of the week's work was an even break. The Giants, by reason of their losses to Boston and Brooklyn and the decision by President Lynch which took them from the game in Philadelphia on August 30, previously credited to them by forfeiture, saw their lead drop from 12 games to 8. The Athletics, thrice beaten by Boston and once by Washington, were more fortunate. Their margin of seven and a half games was reduced by but one game, as the Athletics struck a snag in Chicago, dropping two games there and one in Detroit before they resumed victorious work.

The Giants have won only six out of their last fourteen games. The Athletics have done slightly better, winning eight and dropping six; but meanwhile, the Athletics have pushed them hard, capturing ten while losing but three. The Phillies in the same period lost five contests while winning nine.

The Giants' troubles have been largely due to a continuance of under par work with the bat. They have had good pitching for the most part, even if Mathewson has lost the last three games he has started.

Weak Pitchers.
With the Mack men pitching difficulties have played the major part in the downward slide. Bender has proved about the only reliable slabman; recently, Flank has let down badly and the Cobb twirlers have been erratic.

For the other clubs in each league, the race is over except as to contests for place and the slogan of "next year" is being sounded all along the line. St. Louis already has witnessed a managerial change. Geo. Stovall having been deposed to make way for a new manager. In Boston, although Manager Carrigan has signed a 1914 contract there are rumors of change in ownership of the Red Sox. There is no probability, however, that Manager Stallings will be disturbed in his successful work with the Braves.

Other new managers of the year who will stick according to recent indications, including Johnny Evers of the Cubs, Joe Tinker of the Reds—despite his recent little tiff with the Cincinnati powers that be—and Joe Birmingham of the Clevelanders.

Pittsburgh seems to have found a valuable man in Luhrs, the Albany, Ga., pitcher, who has won three straight games. Schwegel brought back from Michigan by the Browns, made a good start, winning an extra inning game the other day.

Van Grogg's Fate.
A pitching feat of the week was that of Van Grogg of Cleveland, who, although he lost his game, succeeded in striking out Ty Cobb three times within nine innings—a feat rare enough to be noteworthy. Summed up the week's record for clubs in the big league running shows Chicago Nationals gained 13 points while Pittsburgh lost 13 points. The Boston Red Sox gained but 5 points. The Cincinnati Reds lost 13 points, displacing Brooklyn, which team lost six games in nine. The Cincinnati may yet press the Brooklyn for their place, as they gained 13 points in the week. St. Louis succeeded in making somewhat of a record by dropping ten games within seven days—winning one and tying one.

In the American league Washington barely held its own, while Chicago dropped off slightly, the Boston Sox gained but 5 points. The Detroit made a good showing, winning four in six, while both the Browns and Chance's men receded appreciably.

Navs Take An Easy One Off Austin in Last Game

M'Iver Deserts His Team and They Offer Little Resistance in Final Contest of the Season; Tanner and Duguey Choose Their Teams.

San Antonio	81	71	.533
Fort Worth	71	82	.464

A few score trusty fans appeared for the final thrill at Katy park yesterday, and yawned away a beautiful Sunday afternoon while the Navigators stepped on the unresisting Austin Orphans to the tune of 9 to 4.

Manager McIver deserted his team on the final field and left exactly nine men to entertain the Waco fans. Sub-manager Brownlow was heard instructing his relics to "run around lively and make it look like something," but it was a hard job keeping them at it. And the sub-manager himself, in the last inning, refused to run to first, letting the Navigator infield boot the ball all around the diamond before it finally was relayed to first, and Harry Howell called "You're out!" The batter, meanwhile, watching the Navigators from the bench, where he had dragged his ennuied bones.

A classy exhibition, yes. And some enthusiastic fan wanted to know why they didn't have record breaking crowds for the final series. That was before he saw yesterday's game.

The Navigators had all kinds of pep in the final splash, and wallowed Clemmons' choice ones all over the lot. It wasn't any give away game on Clemmons' part—the Navs got to him before he saw yesterday's game.

Archibald Tanner, the Walnut Wonder, saw his last opportunity to star shining slowly but surely into the past, and as it sneaked by he smote it for four safeties in four times up. Portland Bill likewise recovered from his prolonged attack of feebleness with the stick, and lined out three whippersnappers.

One of the celebrated pair who will start Tuesday for their debut into the big woods, namely Cardinal Zin Beck, Clemmons, as well as his fellow debutants, Boston Jake, the Duke of Palestine, made his farewell trips to the Waco plate with nothing to show for it but one lonely pass. Only one pass for Stumpy, and his last game.

The kid battery on which the local dopsters are banking for next year worked in good form. Cliff Hill allowed four singles and three two-baggers, but never letting the Orphans get close to the winning point.

The Orphans had his umpship, Mr. Howell, in a hard way, as he couldn't put any of them out to choose sides and leave a full team. He had to be content to shoot a little friendly sarcasm into Hill when the latter showed him how far the ball missed the plate.

The thrilling spectacle was interrupted by the second and inning to allow Clem Tanner and Duguey to choose sides for the inter-club game tomorrow, when those who have fought side by side throughout the year will end up by soaking each other in the ribs. Tanner and Duguey brought out their bat and did the hard-over-hand stunt for first choice; J. Oscar managing to get an eighth of an inch finger hold on the final round, and throwing the stick some distance over the regulation ten feet.

After which the Orphans were once more led out upon the field of slaughter, and held there till the end of the Galveston, Sept. 7.—Going into full innings in the record time of forty-nine minutes, Galveston and San Antonio closed the season here today, the locals winning 4 to 0. The first four innings were farcical. Rain threatened and the players had instructions to get past the third inning in about the same number of minutes. After that the Pirates settled down and hammered Rogers hard.

Dallas 1-7, Fort Worth 2-0.
Fort Worth, Sept. 7.—Fort Worth wound up its 1913 season in the Texas league today, dividing a double-header with Dallas. The Panthers won the first game 2 to 1 while the second game went to the visitors 7 to 0. Both games were scheduled to go seven innings but the first contest went an extra inning. Storch was put out of the game in the fourth inning for disputing a strike.

REAL ESTATE

For Sale—Real Estate.

In looking over our listings this week we find that we have so many that look like good investments that it is a difficult matter to know exactly what to tell you about. Here are a few of our offerings, if they do not appeal to you, call on us, for we have exactly what you are looking for.

A four-story brick building, right in the heart of the wholesale district of the city for only $57,500. This is an investment which will bear your closest inspection.

An improved corner on railroad 58x165 feet at less than $400 per front foot, any one looking for a buy that will produce a good revenue should not overlook this.

One of the best located business houses on Austin avenue at $250 less than any other property on this street within three blocks of this location. This is a sure index as to whether this is a good investment. Let us tell you more about this.

One of the nicest brick homes in Waco, located on a beautiful corner lot, and the price is less than $23,000. A magnificent two-story home on a desirable corner 150x165 feet at less than it would cost to duplicate the home. Is this cheap enough for you?

A most desirable two-story house on 75-foot corner lot, Waco Vista, price $5800. Will consider a small farm in trade on this property.

An excellent home of six rooms, hard wood floor in parlor and dining room, nice light fixtures, artistic marble large closets, five bedrooms, located on south front terraced lot in Waco Vista, price $4750. A small cash payment and terms to suit.

A fine location near Baylor, lot 70x220 feet, 3-room residence, and the price is only $1500. Lot 58x165 feet, close in on South Fifth street, on which is a 7-room residence, and the price is cheap at $5250.

We have a very complete list of rooming houses, ranging in price from $5000 to $20,000, that we can sell you on terms that will enable you to pay for the property from the revenue that it will produce.

A real bargain on North 15th street, lot 75x165 feet, 6-room residence, price $4750. "Nuf sed."

An ideal home on Gorman street for only $5000; $1000 cash, balance may be arranged to suit purchaser.

A first class investment in a little home on Santer for only $3000; small cash payment, balance to suit.

A beautiful east front lot just across the street from Waco Vista. This is a bargain at $1500, but we can let you have it this week at $1000. Lot 75x165 feet, just one block from the new school on Farwell Heights this week $1000.

A fine south front corner lot on Santer avenue for $650.

On Morrow street, this is a bargain; south front lot surrounded by a group of new homes, which makes it a most attractive homestead, $1350.

One half block on Bell's Hill $3500, and a 5-room residence goes with this for good measure.

We have just listed a real B-a-r-g-a-i-n in a farm consisting of 1500 acres, situated within 100 miles of Waco, near a good railroad town—700 acres in cultivation, 13 sets of improvements, good water, 400 acres hog pasture, a fine Bermuda meadow. This land will produce a bale of cotton to the acre, also corn, peas, peanuts and other products in abundance, which can be used for fattening the swine on the range. You will readily realize the investment feature when we quote you this property at $17.50 per acre.

We have a large list South and East Texas lands as well as properties situated in McLennan and adjoining counties. If you are in the market for good investments see us.

SOME GOOD PROPOSITIONS
Suggested by
KLEIN & BURLESON
111 S. Fifth St., New Phone 364; Old Phone 357.

GOOD PROPOSITION NO. 1.
Modern, well built, new house, N. Twelfth street, more than one lot, all conveniences; big bargain for $3,500; regular $4,000 value. It will take about $1,200 to $1,500 to handle, balance easy. We have only a few days on this place.

GOOD PROPOSITION NO. 2.
Large two-story brick hotel, well furnished, building 50x80, all complete; doing a good business and paying a good rental. Party will trade his equity for Waco city lots or property. What have you to offer? This is for a quick deal. Get particulars.

GOOD PROPOSITION NO. 3.
Large two-story brick building, facing on three streets and right in line for big increase in value. This property will have to be seen and improvements explained. We can make a special price of $4,000 if handled in the next few days, part on easy terms.

GOOD PROPOSITION NO. 4.
That nice little new cottage one block of Herring avenue, for $1,800; is a good deal and someone wanting to invest had better get busy.

GOOD PROPOSITION NO. 5.
We have a new, modern built cottage on good corner lot, one block of car, in good North Side location, for $3,250. The rents will keep up the payments. Party has a nice equity that he would be willing to invest in a good West Texas proposition; would also put in $500 or $600 cash on a good deal. What have you to offer? The land must be a bargain.

GOOD PROPOSITION NO. 6.
We have several "wholesale tracts" of good lots and additional properties that can be bought or traded for right. The owners have not the time to sell them out. Big money is made in addition property and we would like to put you next.

We want to see you and sell your property; and if you want to make any kind of an investment we want to show it.

MARKET IS UNSETTLED

CLARKE AMENDMENT TO TARIFF ON COTTON FUTURES IS FELT.

Speculators and Hedge Traders Feel Unable to Pay the Penalty Exacted.

New Orleans, Sept. 7.—The cotton market is badly unsettled as the result of the refusal of the senate democratic caucus to reconsider its approval of the Clarke amendment to the tariff bill. It is generally expected in the future markets that this blow will kill future trading in cotton in this country, but imposing a tax of $50 on every hundred bales traded in, where actual delivery is not made. Neither speculators nor hedge traders can it be declared, could afford to pay such a penalty when in addition to the commission of 3 points would mean a loss of 13 points the moment a trade was made.

Because of the situation brought about by the Clarke bill, it is difficult to any what effect legitimate market influences will have in the near future. There is a decided disinclination to enter into new business which means that unfavorable weather over the belt could hardly move prices upward very much. Any unfavorable turn in crop or weather conditions might bring in enough selling to cause a wide slump. In such a narrow affair as the market promises to be it probably will not take much selling to bring it lower. Rain is needed over a large portion of the cotton region, and good showers would be called favorable. It is getting so late in the season, however, that reports of crop deterioration are almost certain. The most that can be hoped for is that weather conditions will be such as to cause less deterioration than has been taking place of late.

The spot department has, to a great extent, been demoralized by the attacks made on the future market. Spinners are holding off in the hope of much lower prices. At the same time the new season is now so well advanced that developments of importance may be expected in the spot situation. It remains to be seen what effect the loss of hedge trading will have on the marketing of the crop.

EXPERIMENTERS IN SESSION

Bell County Association Meets—Discuss Boys' Corn Clubs—Short Makes Address.

Temple, Sept. 7.—The Bell County Experiment association held its regular meeting at the state experiment farm, several miles west of the city yesterday, with a large number of farmers in attendance. Superintendent A. K. Short of the experiment farm, delivered an address on "Preparation of the Soil," which was given close attention and evoked numerous questions. The association voted to have the address printed and distributed. A discussion was carried on relative to Sudan grass and one member reported that he had raised 564 pounds of seed on less than an acre and a half. The seed is valued commercially at $1 per pound. Other matters discussed were the revival of Boys' Corn Clubs and the employment of a demonstrator for Bell county, to be paid jointly by the county commissioners and the United States department of agriculture. Final disposition of the subjects was deferred until the next morning.

ATHENS BUILDING IS ACTIVE

Several Structures Now Under Way. Cotton Crop Is Better Than Average Over State.

Athens, Tex., Sept. 6.—Building is very active at present in Athens. The new Henderson county courthouse is well under way, work is progressing rapidly on the new high school building, the art pottery and brick company opened on September 1 and is now manufacturing 35,000 brick every day. The Athens Cotton Oil company has recently completed extensive additions and improvements and the Home Cotton Oil and Fertilizer company will be ready for operation in the near future. Perkins Brothers recently remodeled their house at a cost of $10,000 and the First National bank has installed $10,000 worth of new fixtures.

Brick and pottery manufacturers report a heavy demand for their products and wholesale and jobbing houses are doing a good business. The cotton is well under way in its movement to market and local banks report good deposits. The cotton crop throughout this section is better than in most parts of the state, and grain and feed crops are the best in years. A general feeling of optimism is apparent and all conditions seem to point to a good fall and winter season.

SEES TWO METEORS.

Residents of Eddy Report a Strange Thing in the Heavens.

Eddy, Sept. 6.—Thursday evening about 7 o'clock there was a strange phenomenon visible in the heavens. What it was I will not pretend to say. It looked like two meteors with large heads turned upward and their tails downward at an angle of about thirty degrees, floating through the atmosphere at great speed and very high. They were visible a minute or more, coming from an east-southeast direction. Jupiter and the moon were the only heavenly bodies visible besides the two meteors at the time, as it was early. They moved majestically through the heavens, apparently about six feet apart, each resembling a large-headed walking cane in shape, only they were very bright like a solid flame of fire. After passing over near my home, they seemingly went out. Meteors generally shoot straight toward the way their heads point, and in a hurry, too. Strangers acted in a very strange manner, if they were meteors. I could see nothing else at the time, nor could I hear any noise at all. If it were a flying machine the brilliancy of the lights would have made the machine visible. Maybe they were meteors or some old world being destroyed. Mr. H. C. Ingram and his wife and T. A. Fowler and his wife witnessed the phenomenon, whatever it was. While I believe they were meteors or aerolites, will say they were the queerest ones I ever saw. The sight was superb—beautiful beyond description.

The health of this community is very good at present. The sick are convalescing. A protracted meeting of the Christian church begins tonight, to continue all of next week. Brother Robert J. Cantrell, presiding elder of Fort Worth, will conduct the services.

Everybody able to pick cotton is in the fields. The crop will soon be marketed from this section. The slump in cotton markets yesterday made some of the farmers feel bad.

We had a nice little thunder shower about 4 o'clock this morning, the first for some weeks.

RABIES GERM IS ISOLATED.

Japanese Doctor Claims to Have the Discovery.

New York, Sept. 7.—The rabies germ has been isolated and cultivated by one of the scientists connected with the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research, Dr. Hidyo Noguchi, it was announced today.

For thirty years pathologists have sought to isolate this germ, which produces hydrophobia, but unsuccessfully. Dr. Noguchi began in 1912 the experiments which resulted in his discovery, nearly fifty series of cultivations being necessary. The brains, or medulla, removed aseptically from small animals infected with virus, were used. The method of isolation is described as similar to that employed successfully in cultivating the spirochaetae of relapsing fever.

Dr. Noguchi was born in Japan in 1876, was graduated from the Tokio Medical college and subsequently took post graduate courses at the University of Havana and abroad.

CHRIST ON HAPPINESS

EVANGELIST JONES SPEAKS ON JESUS' PHILOSOPHY OF HUMAN HAPPINESS.

Says Real Pleasure in Life Cannot Be Gauged by Wealth—Happiness Is Giving.

"Jesus Christ's Philosophy of Human Happiness" was the subject of Evangelist Arthur Jones at the North Waco Christian church, which was very favorably commented on by a large congregation. The revival will close tonight, and Dr. Jones will return to his home in Dallas.

A brief resume of the sermon is as follows:

The entire world is seeking happiness, but many seek wrong and many do not even know what they would seek. There are then not only many seekers, but many ways. Some believe they would be happy if they could be rich, and make wealth a synonym for happiness. That this is a failure may be seen all around us. I can show you more real happiness among the poor of Waco than you will find among the rich. Wealth may go with happiness, but wealth does not produce the happiness. There is no known ratio between a man's money and his happiness. No one can say of another, "Tell me what he is worth and I will tell you whether he is a happy man."

There was a rich man who was the friend of God, and the Jewish and Christian ideal of faith. The rich man of the parable who had much goods laid up for his soul found in the end nothing but failure, misery and woe. Wealth cannot create happiness, nor need it destroy it. It all depends on the attitude of the man to his money. If a man's money is devoted to his own selfish purposes and lavished upon himself it will destroy him. But if he is superior to his money and lives to make it do good, then he may gain much joy from its use. I would suggest that money is all right if we can make it honestly and spend it wisely. The very Scripture often made a stumbling block becomes the very solution of the question when we put the emphasis on the right word: "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon the earth, where moth and rust corrupt and where thieves break through and steal." Put the emphasis on the word "yourselves." It is selfish money

AMERICAN WOMEN CARELESS

They overestimate their physical strength and take chances which in the long run cause pain and trouble. Wet feet, a cold from exposure, neglect of such warning symptoms as backache, nervousness, bearing down pains, all lead to untold suffering. To all such women we want to say Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the unfailing remedy in such cases. Thousands of American women testify to its virtue.

ACT OF DEVOTION IN TESTING TIME

DR. F. C. MCCONNELL PREACHES ON MARY—A TRIED FRIEND OF THE SAVIOR.

MARY'S ACT MODEL OF LOYALTY

While Unpopular, Jesus Received an Undying Tribute of Love From the Sister of Lazarus.

"The test of true loyalty to Christ is the sacrifice that it costs," said Dr. F. C. McConnell, pastor of the First Baptist church, in his sermon yesterday morning on "Mary, the Friend of Jesus."

The Scriptural basis of the sermon was the incident of Mary, the sister of Lazarus, anointing the feet of Jesus at the occasion of a supper given in His honor. At the time the popular belief was against Jesus and from the standpoint of public opinion it was dangerous to show friendship for the Savior. The text of the sermon was John 12:3—"Then Mary took a pound of ointment of spikenard, very costly, and anointed the feet of Jesus, and wiped the feet of Jesus with her hair, and the house was filled with the odor of the ointment."

It was a dangerous thing to do because at that time the voice of the multitude was against Jesus, and the speaker, Jesus was so unpopular that even one of the disciples a little later thought that it was necessary to swear about Christ when asked concerning His relationship with the Nazarene. Yet Mary, in the open place where the public might see, poured the most precious of ointments on the feet of the Divine Guest. Policy would have suggested the propriety of the act, but love knows a language and service that is not tied down by conservative wisdom, declared Dr. McConnell. Mary showed to the world by her act that she was a friend of Jesus.

Test of Loyalty.
The true test of loyalty is the standing for a cause when the world is against that cause. It is the test of the Christ when men were shouting "Hosanna, Hosanna," and the crowd lined the Master's entrance into Jerusalem with palm branches. But the supper of Mary, Martha and Lazarus and the true loyalty and real devotion. The way to try loyalty to religion and friendship is by what it costs. It isn't much unless proven by sacrifice, declared the speaker. In Mary's case the entire family might have been arrested the next day.

"There is a tenderness about Mary that is pleasant to contemplate," said Dr. McConnell. "She wanted to give expression to a heart of love. Silently and gently she broke the restraint containing the precious odor and poured it over the Savior, so generously that it filled the entire house with its sweet smell. Then she took her own hair and wiped His feet. I challenge anyone to find a sweeter expression of a heart of love and devotion."

World Needs More Marys.
"It chanced that the deed was costly, but the significance was not in the value of the spikenard. Mary did the thing that the world is in greatest need of—an expression of love and loyalty as deep as the soul. An overflowing nature of love must have an expression, and the world needs an outpouring of that devotion which is intrinsic and purchaseless. Nothing could have stopped Mary in her purpose except God Himself. Such souls in their ministrations and devotion are a higher order than of this world," he declared.

The headers of this world are best in the world, said the speaker. Life's greatest necessity, he insisted, was a tender hand that would cover over the corrosions of the hearts of men. "Jesus," he said, "spoke of the need of a tender hand, when He said that we are blessed to give than to receive."

"The primary thing that prompted the act of Mary was her love," said Dr. McConnell. "Love has become too small a factor in our religious life. We need more of the emotion of love in our religion. The heart must have room for a broad, deep and growing love for Christ. His people and His cause—a love that grows day by day. There were many reasons why Mary loved Jesus, but love does not look to reasons. And she loved Him for the reason that this is different from believing about a person. Her faith in Him was absolute, she believed every word that He uttered and believed in Him who voiced every word."

Love Must Have Expression.
Not only did Mary love, but she believed in the Christ, but crowning all, she did her utmost to express that devotion and faith, said the speaker. This led the minister to declare that love was not enough, but that it remains for man to show his devotion every day and give expression to the emotions within.

"Jerusalem may crucify, but I will express my love; men may herald their contempt, but I will exhibit my devotion; the world may cry its hate but I will shout my faith." This the minister declared was the spirit of Mary.

When the act of love was finished, Judas Iscariot asked why the ointment had not been sold and the funds given to the poor. His question sought to rebuke Mary. But Jesus made an answer that rebuked the one who would shame the author of the tribute to Jesus. "It is always thus," said Dr. McConnell. "He knows how to make a generous and gracious interpretation of our deeds. He alone can show the most gentle and gracious interpretations. The treasurer was dissatisfied, but his was a selfish motive. Love is never stingy; love is always extravagant."

Mary's Act Christ's Pleasure.
Mary's faith greatly gratified the Savior, said the speaker. At this time men were hostile to Jesus and every where there prevailed an antagonistic spirit. But Mary gave to His soul the conscious expression of a generous, loving human heart. And Jesus gave to Mary an honor forever. Christ said that wherever the gospel was preached in all the world that the deed of this woman should be told. He always honors devotion, declared the preacher.

WINNING SOULS BOWDEN'S THEME

HIGHEST HUMAN WISDOM IS TO SAVE IMMORTAL PART OF MAN.

CHRIST'S SOLE AIM ON EARTH

Church the Only Eternal Organization. Value of the Soul Beyond Computation.

"The Soul Winner" was the subject of a sermon preached yesterday by Rev. W. M. Bowden, pastor of the Clay Street Methodist church, at the first service of a revival to last for the next several days. The scriptural basis of the sermon is Proverbs 11:30: "The fruit of the righteous is a tree of life; and he that winneth souls is wise."

He said in part: Every man wants to make the most of his life. As the blossom changes to the bud and the bud opens into the flower, so man wants the latest buds of his better life to mature and ripen, and then scatter their leaves far and wide that he may scatter their fragrance everywhere. By no means is the heart a silent tomb, it is a great hall in which myriads of voices are chanting in chorus. And all these voices are sounding a call to a higher and nobler life, the life which God bids all his children live.

Of course, man does not always obey these calls to the higher life. Our good intentions are often like the seed Christ described in the Gospel of Mark: "And some fell by the wayside and the fowls came and devoured it up." In other words, our good intentions, like the good seed in the hand of the sower, are in our hearts, but no sooner are they planted than the thorns of temptation rise up and choke them, and instead of our lives being a flower garden they are nothing but a barren waste.

King Solomon in my text tells us how we can make the best of our lives. Soul-winning is better than seeking fame. It is better than having high political positions. No matter what your brain or opportunities may be, the grandest, the best and happiest work on earth is the work of bringing men and women to Christ. No matter what a man may be accomplishing, if he is not a soul-winner for Christ, he is missing the greatest opportunity of his life.

If I should go up and down the streets of Waco tomorrow and ask the different men and women whom I met, "Whom do you regard as the wise man?" I would get a variety of answers. I might go to the leading bankers of the city and I would get an answer like this: "I regard the man who succeeds in getting the most money the wise man—the man who provides for his future days, that he may rest easy when his eyes are dim, his hair white, his step feeble and his voice weak." I would then turn to the wise man. "I should go into your political office. I would get a different answer. Very likely the man would reply, 'I regard the man who studies the economic and political problems of the day until he has mastered them, and then uses the highest political office. Should I go to the military men they most likely would say, 'I regard the man who masters the art of war, goes by leaps and bounds from captain to field marshal, I regard him as the wise man.'"

He that winneth souls is wise. In the first place, when a Christian wins a soul for Christ, he is dealing with the only part of man that is immortal. He deals with the only part of man that will never die. The soul is an unweighable, unanalyzable something in the human body which dwells in the flesh, but which springs out of the flesh when that flesh dies. And then taking upon itself the pinnacles of immortality it flies away to another realm, another world where it lives and continues to live after the worlds themselves shall be no more. The soul will never die. If the soul is the only part of man that will never die, it is wise that I look well after that part that has immortal life.

The soul will never die. If the soul is the only part of man that will never die, it is wise that I look well after that part that has immortal life.

The mathematician took the problem, looked at it, and then read the words: "What shall it profit a man if he gains the whole world and loses his own soul?" In anger he tore the paper up. But after his friend had left he began to study the problem. He began to compute the value of money and fame and position and worldly success. For man to show his devotion every day and give expression to the emotions within. "Jerusalem may crucify, but I will express my love; men may herald their contempt, but I will exhibit my devotion; the world may cry its hate but I will shout my faith." This the minister declared was the spirit of Mary.

"So Mary's deed not only filled the house with its fragrance," concluded Dr. McConnell, "but it has filled the whole world with its sweet odor. All of our deeds are living things—let us see that our acts and devotion are such that they not only fill our rooms but spread through the world."

GET TOGETHER MEETING OF POLICE IS TO BE MADE MONTHLY AFFAIR

Members of Force Hear Talks From Chief Barron and Judge Wren—Elect Oscar Myre Chaplain; Harmony Is Keynote of Session.

The efficiency meeting of the police department held yesterday afternoon at the city hall terminated in the decision to hold a similar meeting each month. In the election of a chaplain, Chief Barron was elected, and the provision of a pulpit together which promises well for the department.

The meeting was called by Chief Hollis Barron for the purpose of discussing with the new as well as the old officers the provisions of the ordinances which they must enforce, and to bring the men into closer relation. Its result surpassed the expectations of the chief, the men deciding to make the meetings monthly affairs, and entering into the spirit advocated by Chief Barron with a heartiness.

The meeting was presided over by Chief Barron. All members of the force were present except three. Two of these were prevented from attending because of illness in the family. The third was out of the city. In a clear cut, brief talk the chief went into the purposes of the meeting. First taking up the question of harmony in the force which he said was the primary requisite for efficiency, stating that without harmony no organization could accomplish its purpose, for which it was maintained. He spoke of the harmony which had permeated the working of the force in the past and expressed the desire that such will be the case in the future.

Coming to the discussion of the duties of the men he recited the provisions of the traffic ordinances. These, he said, every man on the force should familiarize himself with, and should be ready to enforce at all times. He said that one man had been detailed to look after violations of the traffic laws, but that it was the duty of every member of the force to watch violations of these ordinances.

Standing Vehicles.
Especially did he lay stress on the ordinances regulating the standing of vehicles on the down town streets; speeding of automobiles and motorcycles with the muffler cut out. He spoke of the increased congestion in the business district and the necessity for the enforcement of traffic ordinances to insure safety to the citizen.

The next question was that of the reorganization. Chief Barron expressed the opinion that the force was doing good work in this district, and that a continuance of this work would eliminate, to a great extent, the evil of that section. He stated that the plainclothes men had been instructed to watch that section and to bring in any person who drank liquor in the houses located there, as well as to arrest any who sold liquor. He expressed the opinion that the work of the department in this direction had been very efficient and the belief that a continuance of it would have beneficial results. He also let it be known that every patrolman as well as the detectives were expected to watch for violations of the law in that part of town.

Taking up the question of pool halls, Chief Barron said it was one of the chief propositions that the force had to deal with. He stated that often when minors were found in a pool hall unanimously as chaplain. When Mr. Myre was seated Chief Barron explained that Mr. Myre was the first private citizen to evidence an interest in the work of the men in the fifteen years or had been associated with the force. He and the other members of the force thanked him profusely for his interest and assistance.

H. H. Head, a patrolman, spoke briefly of the harmony which the force always had displayed, recited some experiences which he, Chief Barron and Night Chief Buchanan had gone through fifteen years ago, as policemen. He said the standard of the police force not alone of Waco but of every city was being improved, and said he believed Waco's force was the best in the state.

Night Chief Bob Buchanan followed with a short talk and Detective Lee Huff said the presence of such men as Mr. Myre at the meetings made the policemen feel better. He said the men wanted more of Mr. Myre's kind to visit them at their meetings, stating that the general public did not know what kind of men the Waco policemen are and he would like for them to come and get acquainted with them.

Immediately after Mr. Huff was seated, the decision was reached to meet once a month. The first Sunday in each month at 5 o'clock was chosen as the meeting date, and Mr. Myre was chosen chaplain.

Evidencing as it did a spirit of interest in the welfare of the city, in the determination to uphold the standard of the force and to work for a better organization and better results, the meeting was the awakening of what promises to result in much good for the department and the city as a whole.
